Bentley Urges Action on Texas Farm Loans

Washington, U.S. Senator Lloyd Bentley urged Friday that President Reagan take emergency administrative action to provide Farmers Home Administration loans to farmers in Texas.

Bentley, in a letter to the President, noted that the FmHA on Thursday ordered its offices in 17 states, including Texas, to stop processing loan applications under its operating loan program. The FmHA is a leader of last resort to U.S. farmers.

"This cutoff could not have come at a more critical time. Texas farmers are in the middle of their planting season, and if their crops cannot be planted on time there will be little chance of making a profitable crop this year," the Senator said. (CONT. ON PAGE 7A)

Independent Cattlemen's Assn. Resists New Powers for TAHC, Former Gov. Briscoe Who Opposes Federal Spending, Seeks Solution

Austin - Rep. Bruce Gibson delayed a House vote on his brucellosis control bill Monday to allow time to work on a compromise with former Gov. Dolph Briscoe, a Uvalde cattleman who had urged a halt in federal spending to combat the livestock disease.

Gibson, D-Godley, sought and received a two-week postponement, moving the date for floor action to April 25. "Gov. Briscoe says he has some new language to compromise this thing out. He wants to meet with me," Gibson said.

"If he sincerely believes he has a new approach, I am willing to discuss it with him... As a former governor, you've got to give him a certain respect."

The bill provides for both testing and quarantine of animals that test out as having the disease.

"The essence is quarantine and testing. I can't compromise on that," Gibson said.

He said he felt a delay would not harm the case for the bill's passage and might even help.

They (other legislators) have been lobbied pretty hard on it," Gibson said. Independent Cattlemen's Association of Texas issued statements to all representatives saying Gibson's bill "is discriminatory and places inequitable financial burdens on cattlemen in this state."

Gibson said the association also had "orchestrated a lot of contacts from the (House members) districts."

The Independent Cattlemen's Association released the following explanation of their position last week.

The Independent Cattlemen's Association of Texas has come on record opposing H.R. 866 by Sen. Bob Glasgow and H.R. 701 by Rep. Bruce Gibson because the bills give the Texas Animal Health Commission too much power.

These bills, if passed, would give the TAHC authority and power to submit any set of rules and regulations appearing to eradicate brucellosis, says Cliff Boucher, executive director of the association. "We would prefer allowing part of the power of writing regulations to remain in the legislature with elected officials. Instead, these bills allow only the governor's political appointees to govern the health programs of the cattle industry of Texas."

The bills were introduced because of pending court litigation ruling the TAHC was adopting regulations when it did not have authority to do so, explains Boucher. With the authority delegated by these bills, the commission will have even greater power over cattle movement and sale in this state, he says.

"With rumors of the threat of a brucellosis quarantine by USDA, many in the cattle industry feel threatened. This is the kind of power vested in the TAHC," Boucher says.

"However, if the U.S. President Ronald Reagan who directed USDA to phase out the brucellosis program. We stand behind his recommendation."

With the power created by these bills the TAHC intends to enforce a stricter set of rules, he says. These stricter rules divide the state into two areas, east and west. East Texas cattle producers will operate under more stringent requirements for cattle movement than West Texas producers. Boucher says testing and vaccination will be required before cattle may be sold into the western section of the state.

"These rules and regulations will serve as a trade barrier within our state," Boucher warns. "Because of the restrictions and added compliance costs required of cattlemen in East Texas, H.R. 866 and H.R. 701 will place cattle producers in East Texas at a great disadvantage, inhibit cattle trade and add to the regional dependence on an unreliable test as the measure of herd health."

Boucher told IGA members to show their opposition to these bills by contacting members of the State Legislators to encourage the bills' defeat.

Out-of-State Tracks Intense Interest in Texas Racing Noted

Frisco - Revelations that the opposition to Texas horse racing is in frequent contact with out-of-state racing interests reinforces the argument for bringing the industry to Texas, the head of the Texas Horse Racing Association said Friday.

"The fact that the leader of the Anti-Grime Council of Texas has been talking to the Edward J. DeBartolo Corporation in Youngstown, Ohio, with the heart of our argument for Texas pari-mutuel horse racing," said R.F. (CONT. ON PAGE 4A)

Bill Would Boost Texas Ag Industries

Austin - Senator Ted Lyon today announced his plan that is designed to help Texas farmers and ranchers get back on the road to economic recovery.

Lyon's Senate Bill 268 is designed to develop agricultural processing industries on a county level, that will be owned by producers. The industries will be financed through bond sales that will be administered by the Texas Department of Agriculture.

"When you see the prices in the supermarkets it is hard to believe that farmers and ranchers aren't making (CONT. ON PAGE 4A)

any money," Lyon said. "But the prices is the grocery stores and the prices that the farmers receive for their commodities have very little in common."

Lyon said that he hopes his bill will help to solve this problem. "Senate Bill 886 will allow agricultural producers to form groups and finance their own processing and storage facilities," Lyon said. "If the producers can get into the processing and marketing business they will be one step closer to the consumer."

"Government leaders and the consuming public must be made aware that their own economic well-being is directly linked to a strong, viable agriculture economy. Overall economic life cannot be cured until the farm sector again begins to prosper," Lyon said. "I feel that this plan could represent a major step toward economic recovery for Texas farmers and ranchers."

Livestock Producers Need To Be On Screwworm Alert

especially treated attractant pellets called SWASS are being distributed in the area. Inspections are also being increased along the Texas-Mexico border to detect any possible screwworm infestations.

"Although the screwworm cases are 100 miles below the Texas border, we need to keep a constant watch for possible screwworm infestations. This is especially true for producers within 100 miles of the Texas-Mexico border," Dr. Holcombe said.

Mailing kits for use in submitting suspected samples are available at Texas Animal Health Commission area offices, county agent's offices, and other outlets.

Texas had only six confirmed cases of screwworms during 1982. Rapid reporting of the cases helped to confine the infestation area within a 15-mile radius. "We need the continued cooperation of livestock producers now in submitting suspected screwworm samples to the U.S. Department of Agriculture fly laboratory at Mission," Dr. Holcombe said.

Phillips, Jr., Texas Horse Racing Association president.

"Our argument all along has been 'don't send Texas money and Texas tax revenues to Youngstown, Ohio, or anywhere else. Let's keep it here in Texas where it belongs.'"

Phillips noted that the DeBarcellos own more than 90 percent of the track in Bossier City, La.

"For years, we've suspected that the out-of-state interest had more than a passing fancy about Texas racing," Phillips said. "But in all the years I have been here, I have never had it brought home as graphically as it was yesterday."

"The question is whether pari-mutuel horse racing is good for Texas. We believe that it is. It is clear from the stories of the past two days that horse racing in Texas will not be good for the folks in Youngstown, Ohio," Phillips said.

Phillips issued his statement in response to action by the House Committee on Urban Affairs which subpoenaed the telephone records of Alvaro Moley, director of the Anti-Crime Council of Texas. Those records showed 18 telephone calls to the Youngstown number for the DeBarcellos company.

Phillips also noted that other out-of-state racing interests are following the legislation in Texas. He released copies of correspondence expressing concern from New Mexico about the developments in Texas.

"I think that other states have a right to be concerned about what Texas is doing," Phillips said. "But at least in the case of the Jockey Club of Ruidoso-Buena Vista, they are taking a positive and forceful approach to staying out of our business here in Texas."

"I appreciate their wisdom and their restraint. In the long run, racing in Texas will be good for the nation's racing industry. It's good for the breeders and the breeders when we have more places to race, and the jockey club clearly sees this."

Argentine Wool Subsidy Exposed

Board of the National Wool Growers Association, said he thought the duty imposed would bring the Argentine wools more in line with the domestic pricing structure. According to Rouselet, the subsidy on the Argentine wool had an unfavorable impact on the U.S. consumer.

"It helped to increase the payments to American growers under the U.S. Wool Act, and thereby raised the costs of that program," he said. "These payments increase when our wool growers have to take a lower market price for their wool," Rouselet pointed out.

The imposition of the duties identified on the countervailing petition is retroactive to the preliminary decision rendered by Commerce on January 12, 1983.

On a companion issue, Representative Tom Loeffler (R-TX) introduced legislation late last year calling for a one year, 10 percent duty on both Argentine and Uruguayan wools. That legislation awaits further action by Congress.

payments due, etc. This time it gave out with a statement about a $40,000 loan, which it had kept inside its machinery for some four years. The man who owed the money had had no notice and so kept quiet and you can imagine how the bankers felt to discover this guy had used their money all this time and paid nothing!

Then there was the tale about the guy who had worked for E. F. Hutton and when he left he had the codes that penetrated their super secret research information. With his home computer and the telephone he stole those secrets at will. And there are other scary tales about how inactive bank accounts have been rifled by outsiders and insiders who know the codes and milked 'em for hundreds of thousands of dollars.

All these things were interesting, even sometimes amusing, until we encountered the abolition of paper banking, our own self. You see, we have a profit sharing retirement trust for our employees run by the company board of directors. Now these trusts are closely watched by the Labor Dept., and especially the Internal Revenue Service. Occasionally they decide to audit such things, and if you have ever been through an audit you know how they went to see every envelope, bank stub, cancelled check, EVERY THING.

We had put some of the Trust's excess cash temporarily in what they call a Super NOW Account. When we got the statement there were no cancelled checks or deposit slips. Now in our benign ignorance we ain't trustin' nobody nor no machine to reconcile our bank accounts, and we don't figure the IRS would be any more lenient. We yelled. We checked around and everyone agreed that the cancelled checks were the property of the depositor and by rights the banks had no right to shred 'em. Especially those the IRS might like to see. Can you imagine what any self respecting IRS agent would say if a retirement trust showed $11,900 withdrawn with no cancelled check to account for where it went and for what?

Tipel. Needless to say our trust does not belong to that little club any longer and our shock was complete when we read the fine print in which they said they would not return cancelled checks, or deposit slips. Be sure you read the fine print folks, and if the gobbledy gook is beyond you, see your lawyer. There are some folks who say that one day there will be no certificates issued for stocks and bonds, etc., you will simply have a kind of shape are you gonna be in if someone pushes the wrong button accidentally or on purpose? All this paper flyin' around don't bother us near as much as no paper flyin' around.

Ever think, The Edditar. P.S.: Uncle Dunk says the way the politicians are arguin' about how much money the Govint has and how much money they ain't got and how much the deficit is gonna be, etc., just goes to prove that figgers don't lie; but that liars can sure, figger. - Thassall, Brother!

Tower Sponsors New Soviet Grain Pact Negotiations Start

bought as much as 155 million metric tons of U.S. corn and wheat per year and has depended on the U.S. for up to 70 percent of its total needs of these commodities. Last year, the Soviet purchased only the minimum level of corn and wheat from the U.S. under a one-year extension of the previous grain agreement. Recently, the Soviet signed long-term grain agreements with five other nations that have filled
the void created by the declining U.S.
share of the market. Tower said.
Senator Tower also pointed out that a long-term grain agreement with the Soviet Union would help restore the health of U.S. agricultural exports.
"Increasing the export of grain should be our first priority in restoring economic health to our farmers and rural communities. The efficiency of the U.S.
farmer has allowed us to enjoy a cooperative advantage in any agricultural commodities, establishing the U.S. as the world's leading supplier of agricultural goods. Taking advantage of this efficiency by retaining established markets, developing new ones and recovering past market share is crucial to long-term stability in American agriculture," Tower said.
"The President's decision in April 1981 to lift the previous Soviet grain embargo, combined with his recent signing of contract exactly opposite last year, demonstrates a very cautious, yet firm, move to restore our market position in the Soviet Union.
I feel a new long-term agreement is a natural step in continuing to re-establish this valuable agricultural market," Tower continued.
"Our failure to compete with the force of four highly efficient agricultural industries and a renegotiated long-term grain agreement, would only hurt American farmers and encourage the Soviet Union to continue to seek other suppliers. This commitment to reestablish the current long-term agreement will provide a base for re-establishing this key market for U.S.
farm goods," Tower concluded.

Commodities Comment

Week Ending April 7, 1983
It seems that the one common denominator for all markets in general is the belief that lower interest rates are on the way and it is bullish. Any type of statement from a "senior Federal Reserve official" indicating a drop in the prime rate immediately causes a rally in the futures market.
Grains, livestock, metals, stock index futures, currencies, and on forth, have all benefited in recent days to just those types of thoughts. As a matter of fact, so sharp breaks in the public and commodity markets have been seen in the past few days. The month of April looks like a pivotal month. Keep your eye on the Federal Reserve and listen to Paul Volcker.

The grains continue to be dominated by the bulls. There is really very little negative news around to depress prices. I guess the only thing that is negative is the price level at which we are now trading. The general opinion is that with such a cut in acreage due to the PIR program any crop problems will be very bullish. Consequently traders enter the market on price breaks hoping to "get a handle" on a bull move as we enter spring planting.
At these prices I'm not so bullish on new crop corn but I'm quite bullish on new crop beans. Good demand for soybean meal, an increase in animal numbers and a hot dry summer will give us a real good bull move before fall.
At this writing November beans closed at $8.88, July wheat $3.74 and December corn $3.04.

The Mercantile Exchange has a real bull on its hands. It's the cattle market!
Due to the continued wet weather in the southwest and mid-west the cattle market has moved sharply higher in recent days. Demand has been excellent and the commercials have been the best buyers. I have been very bullish on the cattle since December and all my price advisories have been met. The June cattle option feels as if it is "near a top". I would not suggest a short sale at this time but June cattle will struggle to hold a price over $72.00. The hogs and bellies finally rallied this week! It's about time. People are talking about a seasonal upmove in the pork complex and they're right. I guess the question is from what level will the rally occur. I look for heavy selling in the pork complex at these levels or a little higher. At this writing June cattle closed at $70.07, June hogs $68.27 and July bellies $72.82.

The metals are a real question mark.
Silver and gold still appear to be liquidating markets with much lower prices still a possibility. Near-term my guess is that the direction of oil prices will be the main fundamental force affecting gold. My bias is to stand aside at this time in the metal market. Volume in light and trading is erratic. I don't like to see either of these two things
when I'm trying to make money trading futures.

Which way from here?
I'll continue to drag my feet about being a "bull". I still feel that a break in the Dow and the interest rate futures will occur during the month of April.
I'm just not willing to be a buyer of much of anything at current price levels. I'd like to be a bull but I feel a sharp break in most markets will occur.

this month. This month's sale is a lot of February. And late February is a lot out to be a nightmare for the bulls.

John Joyce, sales manager for this event states, "This will undoubtedly be the largest group of purebred F-1 females ever assembled. We will not only have adequate numbers, but the animals to this sale will have been carefully screened and of the utmost quality. We feel that anyone in the market for F-1 females can be assured of high quality, as they have been consigned by the leading F-1 producers in the business."

Peanut Outlook

Peanut farmers have the privilege of dealing with a more balanced supply-demand situation than most other farmers, says an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. This, along with higher production costs, points to an improved profit picture for the 1983 peanut crop. Farmers will again have a national average support level of $650 per ton for their '83 crop grown under the farm quota poundage program. Additional payments will have a support price of $150 per ton.

A WOMAN HAD ordered a book from a large publishing company. Several weeks later she received the following letter: "Many thanks for your recent order. We wish we could fill it at once, but improvements in our procedures will mean a delay in shipping."

Henry Wright Not a Pyromaniac, It's Just Fire Ecology!

Lubbock-Certain conditions must be met before Henry A. Wright will set a fire. He applies the 40/60 rule to create fire lines - 40-60 percent humidity, temperatures of 40-60 F. and winds less than 10 mph. To set the headfire, Wright looks for temperatures in the 70s windin of 8-15 mph and humidity between 25-40 percent.

Wright is not a victim of pyromania but rather an international authority and pioneer on the use of fire as a range management tool. Co-author of the book, "Fire Ecology: United States and Southern Canada," Wright spent 10 years in research, traveling throughout the country clearing land with fire. He found fire betters both man and wildlife.

The Texas Tech University Range and Wildlife Department chairman wrote the book along with fellow range specialist Arthur W. Bailey of the University of Alberta, Edmonton. The 502-page illustrated publication examines the historical impact of fire on most plant species in the U.S. and Southern Canada and details principles of prescribed fire in ecosystem management.

"We won't see the full potential use of fire in managing grass and shrubs for another 10 years. It will take some 20-30 years for fire to meet its full potential in managing forests. Foresters hesitate to use fire because these plant communities have been protected from fire for so long," Wright said.

Aspect of brush management by fire which have hindered its potential use are inexperienced in prescribed burning and the fear that a fire might get away. However, more federal agencies related to the environment and environmental issues are conducting in-situations in controlled burning as a viable means of brush control.

In 1982 more than 100,000 acres of Texas rangeland were managed by fire. Wright predicts that number doubling in 1983. "Intense fire as a management tool picked up in 1975 because of public opposition to chemicals. Fire was, and is, seen as a more natural control which is also more economical," Wright said. The researchers said contracting for a burn specialist costs approximately $5-10 per acre - ovas lean if as individual is trained and can do it independently. Cost of chemical or mechanical control generally runs $15-20 per acre.

Nature, not man, first used fire as an effective tool in managing range vegetation. Chemicals, man's creation, were once thought to be the answer la ridding rangeland of unwanted brush. And, in some cases, chemicals are the best means to control brush species.

"Fire is another management tool. It in not a cure-all," Wright said. "We really need chemicals in treating certain areas where there is no alternative."

For fire to be a successful management tool, as area must contain at least 1,000 pounds per acre of grass, preferably 2,000 pounds. Wright said: "The guarantee the fire spreading to effectively manage the undesirable plant species. In areas where there is insufficient grass to carry a fire, spraying and chaining are used with fire as a renovation tool," Wright said.

The Texas Tech Horn professor describes prescribed burning as an art and science. "The book's chapter on burning should serve as the base of information before a person attempts it in the field. We recommend two seasons of burning under experienced people before an individual supervises a burn."

Wright believes the book is a definitive work on fire ecology. It is different from previous works on fire as a range management tool in that it details the effects of fire on all major plants in the U.S. and Southern Canada. The book also ties together all aspects of fire ecology, including wildlife, heat effects, soils, water and plants.

Five of the book's chapters were written in cooperation with the U.S. Forest Service for use by the Bureau of Land Management. The publication is geared toward graduate students and resource managers. It is considered an excellent reference book for libraries.

"Fire Ecology: United States and Southern Canada" is available through Wiley-Interscience, 605 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10158. The book is priced at $49.50.

DWI BILL

The DWI bill currently being debated in the Texas Legislature includes the elimination of "deferred adjudication." The practical effect of deferred adjudication is to allow alleged DWI offenders to continue to drive, serve no jail term, receive no insurance penalty and have no record of a drunk driving offense. Says an official of the Texas Safety Association and a safety specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. Under the proposed legislation, probation for first offense DWI would still be allowed, but it would be part of a driver's record for future DWI court action.

Rio Vista Schools, an Overwhelming Success

Rio Vista International, Inc. of San Antonio, Texas is extremely pleased with the response to the in-depth embryo transfer schools being held by that firm. Rio Vista has completed two schools and plans to hold three schools each year. "We are overwhelmed by the success of these schools," reports Dr. Brent Perry, President of RVI. "We have had to turn away students at both schools, and we already have enrollments for our June and October classes." Students, mostly veterinarians and ranchers, have come from South Africa, Italy, Argentina, Venezuela, Mexico and throughout the United States. Rio Vista is not only pleased at the overall competency and success rates of their graduates. Unlike most other training courses available through many of the university systems, Rio Vista offers a large amount of "hands-on" training. A student will collect about 45 superovulated cows and implant about 100 embryos before completing the three week commercial course which is designed to train a person to enter directly into the embryo transfer business. According to Dr. Lloyd Donaldson, Graduates of Rio Vista's commercial course in embryo transfer have come from South Africa, Venezuela, Argentina, Italy, Mexico, and throughout the United States. Director of Rio Vista Schools, the most exciting news is that to date all graduates from the commercial course have reported successes on their own after returning home. Patience is the greatest of all shock absorbers. The only thing you can get in a hurry is trouble.

Stillwaters Beefs Up Red Brangus Herd

Stillwaters Red Brangus beefed up their Red Brangus herd by the addition of embryo interests to seven proven Red Brangus females from El Toro Rojo Red Brangus.

Included in the transaction are PFR 236/8, highest valued cow in the Red Brangus breed today and Bar H 79/4, whose bull calves have achieved an average weaning weight of 700 pounds, average WDA of 85 pounds, and a 200 day gain of 688 pounds. Her female offspring have averaged 555 pounds at weaning and have a 205 day weight of 588 pounds.

Other females included in the transaction carry equal performance records and include the dam of JMB Red River Chief, a young herd sire prospect whose average daily gain record was 4.88 pounds per day and Lanear, another great Red Brangus herd sire.

Dr. Franklin House of Stillwaters and Dr. Leonard Shockey of El Toro Rojo hope that by combining these proven bloodlines with those of the breeds top two herd sires, EXTRA and PFR 77/6, their offspring will continue to make headlines and pay off both at the scales and at the sales.

Texas Longhorn to Benefit Museum New Headquarters

Fl. Worth — A select group of registered Texas Longhorn cattle will sell in a historic "haro raising" event with all proceeds going to the building fund of the Texas Longhorn Breeders Association of America (TLBAA). The sale, named the "National Headquarters and Museum Food-Raising Sale", is set for 12 noon, August 12, 1983, at the amphitheater of the MGM Grand Hotel in Reno, Nevada. The sale will be held in conjunction with the annual convention of the TLBAA. The unique fund raising event was announced by Dr. L.V. Baker, Jr., Elk City, Oklahoma, president of TLBAA.

The new headquarters and museum for TLBAA will be constructed in Ft. Worth, Texas, near the site of the old Chisholm Trail.

All cattle in the sale are being donated by members of TLBAA. Commitments will be collected by a sale committee from photographs and production information provided by breeders. This information must be received in the association office by May 10, 1983.

The construction of a new headquarters and museum is a result of the continued interest in registered Texas Longhorn cattle and the explosive growth of TLBAA. In the last five years, membership in TLBAA has increased by about 300 percent. In the last year, membership has increased from 1,200 to near 2,300. The new building will serve as worldwide headquarters for America's original beef breed and the museum will house artifacts and memorabilia from early Western America including the trail drives.

The "National Headquarters and Museum Food-Raising Sale" is managed by TLBAA and will be auctioneered by Colonel Eddie Wood, Wynnewood, Oklahoma. For more information, contact Charles Dooly, Executive Director, TLBAA, 8701 Airport Freeway, Fort Worth, Texas, 76111, (817) 881-4877.

TLBAA Marketing Seminars

The first of 10 TLBAA Marketing Seminars was conducted at Tallahassee, Florida, February 19. Speakers present were Charles Dooly, TLBAA Executive Director, Darol Dickinson, Dickinson Ranch, and Stan Searle, owner/publisher of the Texas Longhorn Journal.

The Southeastern Texas Longhorn Regional Association turned out in good numbers to support the event. This original program was designed to help TLBAA members develop local markets and outlets for selling their stock. It was discussed by many, that the better each person can successfully market their cattle, the more stable each person is in the industry. The ability to personally market all surplus Texas Longhorn cattle is a stable industry factor.

Future Marketing Seminars will be held in California, Colorado, Kansas, Texas and other states which have not been finalized at this time.

The TLBAA Marketing Committee has just completed a brochure on cattle marketing, which will go out to each TLBAA member as a membership service. This brochure is designed to inform and direct members in the fine art of marketing quality cattle.

For more information on marketing your cattle, contact: Charles Dooly, TLBAA, 8701 Airport Freeway, Ft. Worth, TX 76111.

MORE LIVE CALVES

On most cow outfits in the Great American Ranch Country, getting a live calf, unassisted, is the most important thing that can happen. Registered Texas Longhorn bulls give you more live calves and you won't be up all night worrying during the calving season. Calves elated by Texas Longhorn bulls weigh about 40 to 60 pounds and generally cause no problems for cows or heifers.

Natl Cattlemen's Assn. Jerry Sees Improved Conditions In 1985

nlk production, but income from sale of calves and cull cows is a significant part of your total income, and as in many industries secondary products are a significant part of total revenue and profits, so is the sale of the beef carcasses, which you are a part of.

Beef is the biggest business in agriculture. Sales of cattle and calves total about $30 billion a year.

There are over 1.8 million cattle in the U.S.; 812,000 are dairy cattle and 1,000,000 are beef cattle.

In 1982, there were 38.1 million beef cows and 11.1 million dairy cows.

In 1982, 3.4 million dairy cows were culled. 4.0 million beef cows were culled. 7.4 million calves were culled.

Generally, dairy cows weigh more than beef cows. The average 50% of the heaviest beef is dairy beef. Yes, you do have a big stake in the price of cull cows. Anything that can be done to maintain high cow prices is money in your pockets and ours.

About 5.0 million dairy calves entered the beef trade in 1982. About 1.9 million calves were slaughtered early, and about 3.1 million were finished in feedlots, producing about 18% of the fed beef supply. This combination of beef from cull dairy cows, dairy calves, and finished dairy beef adds up to approximately 20% of the total U.S. beef production.

I thought you would be interested in a few conclusions about our beef industry as we see it. These were pointed out in an in-depth study by a Special Advisory Committee of NCA. The report is called "The Future for Beef." It is available from NCA at $5.00 per copy. I highly recommend it to you as the best reference on the beef industry.

The Meat Industry Has Matured. In the past 10 years, per capita meat consumption has leveled off at 200 lbs. In 1982, the breakdown was as follows: 77.8 lbs. beef, 58.5 lbs. pork, 63.7 lbs. poultry, 100.5 lbs. total.

The important thing is that our study told us that while there will be fluctuations in the production of different types of meat, we can count on essentially the same total per capita supply of meat for the rest of this decade. It is also very clear that the competition for the protein dollar is going to be greater than ever in the future. Our study showed that the demand for the entire animal protein complex including milk, is going to be greater than the demand for meat.

The NCA study concluded that beef is the preferred meat. It has sold for the last 8 years at $2.40 lb., while pork sold at $1.70 lb., and poultry averaged 75 cents lb. This tells us that the average consumer will rate beef as the most preferred meat, but we must work aggressively to maintain that image.

In 1982, dairy cattle numbers increased 1.4%, and milk production increased 0.9%. In response to continued favorable profits, in contrast, beef cows were reduced by 3% down by 1.1 million cows, and 3.5 million beef replacement heifers were reduced 4% down by 272,000 heifers. Beef cattlemen, voluntarily, carried out this reduction in response to operating losses and tighter loan requirements. We are pleased with the inventory numbers and thought we could see some relief from the past sustained losses. There was even a little optimism creeping back into the beef business until we took a closer look at the impact of cull dairy cows and the PIK program on our carcasses for profit.

You and the Federal government want to get rid of the burdensome surplus of dairy products now in storage. We understand the goal is to make significant reductions in milk production by reducing the size of the nation's dairy herd by 12-15%. That would be about 1.5 to 1.7 million cows culled over the next year or so to be culled at the rate of your normal culling rates. In general, this would mean reducing your current inventory of 11.1 million cows down to at least 9.5 million cows to achieve good balance between production and current demand.

Secretary Block has announced that the first 50-cent assessment will be implemented, effective April 16. I am sure that everyone will be watching to see what effect the first 50-cent assessment will have on culling and reduced milk production. Only time will tell just how strong an economic signal this will be to stimulate herd reduction.

Some believe that it will take the second 50-cent assessment to have a sufficient impact to really get the herd reduction program under way. Others are not so confident about the impact of the $1 assessment, and some say even the first 50-cent assessment will not be implemented.

There is growing support for the legislation recently introduced by Congressmen J. Ford and Harkin which includes incentive pricing formula to reward producers for reducing herd size and milk production, while penalizing those that choose to produce above their established base of production. Regardless of which reduction program prevails, it will be beneficial in the long run, but during the short-term it will be very painful for all cattlemen.

To help you keep the beef supply over the next two years, in perspective, you need to know that beef cattlemen will cull about the same number of cows in 1983 as 1982—about 4.0 million cows. Of course, this can vary according to prices, weather, and intensity of your extra culling program and both exports and imports.

Let's assume, just for making some estimate, that your culling program gets under way and results in an extra 800,000 dairy cows culled each year over a two year period. This culling may spill over into three calendar years. No one can really know how it might work out yet, but using these assumptions the numbers would look something like this.

Regular dairy cow culling 3.4 million. Extra culling .8 million. Total dairy 4.2 million. Beef cow cull 4.0 million. Total all cows 8.2 million.

Under these assumed conditions, we estimate the increase in beef supply will reduce cow prices by $5 cwt., on the average and as much as $6 cwt., under bunched fall marketing. Solving your serious milk surplus problem creates short-term beef marketing problems for all of us.

I have one suggestion for you. In the next two years, you need to know more about market conditions than ever before. You need to have a better feel for the beef market—how and when to sell cattle to maximize your gross revenue. One of the best ways I know of is for you to join Cattle-Fax. Cattle-Fax provides current information on sales and prices in various areas of the country. This kind of data could be critical over the next two year period when you will be selling this unusually large number of cows.

Everyone knows about the PIK program, but we certainly don't all understand it. What we do know is that over the next year or so it will probably have the greatest impact on agriculture of any government program that's come along in many years. It's going to be both short-term and long-term effects in our profits. The sign up was much higher than expected and everyone concerned is already making rapid and major adjustments in thinking, financing and production projections, and overall planning.

It appears that corn acres will be down by 30%, reducing the corn crop from last year's high of 8.4 billion bushels to approximately 5.8 billion bushels in 1983. Of course, weather and some outside areas coming into production may affect this number by harvest time, but it is obvious the surplus will be reduced and grain prices will be higher.

In the next few months, we will watch this new program unfold and very likely, for the short-term, the entire livestock and poultry complex will suffer. Production costs in the short-term will rise to the point that:

1. Feeder cattle prices will be depressed by $5 cwt.
2. Cost of gains in the feedlots will rise by $8 cwt.
3. Cost of production may discourage the expansion that has already started in the pork industry.
4. The same will probably be true for the poultry industry.
5. And, I am sure you are already calculating the rising cost of milk production. If it is severe enough, it may speed up your plans for reducing the size of your herd.

Demand is a function of price, preference, and other consumer attitudes. Concerns about fat, and calories, and physical fitness and health, are moving up fast as the second most important concern, next to price, that affects demand.

The diet/health concerns among consumers have had a depressing effect on the demand for red meat. We don't know just how much effect, but we do know that it is a serious matter. We know that we have to do a better job of emphasizing the positive values of animal products and countering the negatives.

Many scientists, in and out of government, are trying to come up with answers to concerns about diet/health, and too quick to make diet recommendations that are not properly supported by the scientific facts. Many activists, with a bias against meat and dairy products, are inclined to recommend against anything that contains saturated fat or cholesterol. And some persons in the news media are quick to jump on any report that suggests cancer or heart disease is associated with eating fat and meat products. Once some of these theories get into print, they tend to be accepted by many opinion influencers as well as many persons in the general public.

There are a number of things that can be done to improve the image and acceptance of our products.

1. You in the dairy business have done an outstanding job of responding to interest in leaner, lower-fat foods. You are now marketing more low-fat milk. We, in the beef business, have to produce leaner, lower-fat beef for those who want that type of product.
2. We have to do a better job of showing the positive values of beef as well as dairy products. We must show the nutritional values and the high nutrient density of beef.
3. We have to develop more scientific information which shows the value and safety of our products and which counters the unfounded negatives which we hear so often. We must try to keep government-sponsored agencies from issuing diet recommendations which are unfairly biased against red meat and animal products.
4. We must deal more effectively with opinion influencers and the news media—providing them with background and facts which will result in a better image for beef and dairy products.

We commend you, in the dairy industry, for doing a very fine job of promoting the positive values of your products in fighting the adversarial of milk and animal products. You are well-funded and staffed, and have been at this longer than we have. Now, we are stepping up our investments in staff and in information and promotion, in order to do a better job.

In the future, I trust we can increase our cooperation in developing information, in dealing with the government and government-supported agencies, and in information programs for the media and the public.
